Foo Quicksearch (formerly Foo Uie Quicksearch) Crack Download

foo quicksearch is a lightweight plugin for foobar2000 that consists of a toolbar allowing to send the search results to a certain playlist. The playlist name and the tags to search for are configurable, as well as other options. Extended search (playlist gen syntax) and context menus (Search for same artist, album, title) are also supported. Features: * Playlist name and tags configurable * Easy to set up (in interface) and remove * Extended search (playlist gen syntax) * Context menus (Search for same artist, album, title) * No extra plugins required * Works with QTransfo or XPlaylistTransfo * Can copy search results to clipboard * Can set search result marker as permanent * Pluggable * Ad free * Cross platform * No dependencies Please note that to use foo quicksearch, a config file has to exist. So first install foo quicksearch before a configuration file is created. Important: Please use XPlaylistTransfo instead of QTransfo. QTransfo is going to be removed in a future release of Foobar2000. The toolbar is designed to be used only in playlist mode. It works like this: first you set your desired search field, search settings (Advanced) and tags to search for. Next you press "Foo Quick Search". The results appear in your playlist of choice. Please note: QTransfo and XPlaylistTransfo are needed to use the playlist gen syntax. Both foobar2000 plugins can be used together. Why not just use Foobar2000's search feature? Simple answer: because it is not integrated with the music library and you can't use playlist gen syntax. Also, it is not configurable like this plugin. The queue where the search results will be sent to is NOT deleted. If a track you want to add is not available in your local music library (not in foobar2000's music library), you can add it using the plugin. This is not possible with Foobar2000's search feature. If you have enough space, foo quicksearch creates the playlist in foobar2000's music library to queue your search results. Why bother to use this plugin then, when you can just use the search feature? I created this plugin because it's easy to set up, has less features, less features to configure and less features to be used. And before you start hating me,
