I would like to know how to get the current working directory from another class. The directory will be used by my program to know the location of *.exe files, e.g.: Path executablePath = Paths.get("C:\\Users\\xxx.xxx\\Desktop\'); But it seems like I cannot get it from another class without making it a constant. public class myModule { public static class MyClass { public static void main(String[] args) throws Exception { Path executablePath = Paths.get("C:\\Users\\xxx.xxx\\Desktop\"); } } } A: You can use getClass().getResource("path_here") in a static block. If you're using a class that 82138339de
