Description of the Prior Art When multiplexing speech data for transmission over a cable or other transmission line, speech data is conventionally considered to be a binary signal. As such, the data is stored in a binary form for digitization. This type of system is described, for example, in U.S. Pat. No. 4,496,964 issued Jan. 7, 1985. However, conventional speech coding introduces an audio energy level modulation between 0.5 and 15 percent, or about 0.5 to 15 db. This modulation introduces an inherent noise source which is additive to the desired
