Available for both 32-bit and 64-bit versions of Windows. Folder Colorizer Category Folder Colorizer is a small Windows application created to assign a different color to any folder on your system. Basic technical knowledge is enough because Folder Colorizer introduces an entry in the Context Menu and thus allows you to simply right click a folder to change its color. The application already comes with eight predefined colors, but it also allows you to define your very own and even save it by writing down an unique name. It's all just a matter of clicks and while this could be very well considered just a task more appropriate for rookies, it could come in handy to every computer user out there. The application doesn't affect system performance in any way and the best of all is that it works smoothly on all Windows versions on the market. What's more, it only asks for administrator privileges in order to change the color of system-protected folders. Last but not least, you don't even need to let the app running in order to keep the new folder colors, so computer performance isn't affected at all. All things considered, Folder Colorizer is an app that could help plenty of users out there, offering one of the most user-friendly approaches on the market. Shell integration clearly helps a lot and since it's all so intuitive, the lack of a help manual shouldn't bother you too much. What's New In Folder Colorizer?

===== Folder Colorizer is a small Windows application created to assign a different color to any folder on your system. You can save it with an unique name and color to quickly recall it later. Just drag it on the folder you want to change its color. You can also select a predefined color or customize yours. Technical Specifications:

===== Version: 1.1.0 File Size: 7,83MB
Developer: Kevin Outwater License: Freeware Mfpr: No File Type: .exe,.exe (Portable, Setup) Language: English Other: NO Folder Colorizer Review The program installs as a.exe and has no uninstaller. During installation, it gives you a "Please wait" box which adds about 30 seconds of elapsed time to the installation. It is frustrating if you are installing on a high speed network (A fast Internet). After installation, the icon is found in the System and will not be found with your programs section unless you add it there. The program also adds a shortcut to the "Start" menu for the icon. Folder Colorizer runs in the background and will never be looked at. The program gives a friendly menu where you can change the opacity of the program (no menu bar) and how visible the program is when you click on the icon. This is perfect for an administrator using a laptop or notebook. There are 8 basic pre-defined colors for you to choose and you can customize these colors using the drop-down boxes. These colors are gray, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, purple, and black. The colors can be edited by typing or pasting. There is no range for editing these colors and the color black only allows you to have a totally transparent color. You can only save the color for any single folder and this is all you can do. You can not save it for any type of folder (drive, recycle bin, root, etc.) Finally, you can not save colors using a unique name. This application is free and it only takes up about 7mb of the hard drive space. It does not install any files or perform any modifications of other programs. It also does not interfere with your normal operation of the computer. Folder Color
