I would like to have a query to insert all rows from a table into this table, where the values of the field'status' are set to 1, if the id of the new record already exists in the 'Sport' table. edit - added table layout A: Something like this might do the trick? insert into Sport (sport_id,status) select sport_id, 1 from Table1 Where Sport.sport_id not in (select sport_id from Sport) or this? insert into Sport (sport_id,status) select sport_id, 1 from Table1 Where Sport.sport_id in (select sport_id from Sport where sport_id!='sport_id_in_table1') so that you can use one table for a list of all your records and then use a cursor to cycle through the records checking for those that you don't want/need to insert into the table, but as the station's longtime jockey Rick Dees accused her of being "full of herself", she was shunned and became one of the most disliked personalities in radio. Her show was heard only once more by the station, in 1985, just after Dick Scott's final morning show and before the station began again under the name WXKS-FM. The show came back as The Radio 69er at 1 PM on weekdays from September
