Dutch Fries - Made in America The Dutch Oven is the old fashioned way of making healthy, homemade and delicious, cast iron hand-tossed potatoes. The great thing about this Dutch oven is that it is as delicious as it is cheap. If you're a fan of fluffy, fluffy, mashed potatoes you'll love the Dutch Oven, but if you want the crispy, browned, toasty potatoes you need to get a cast iron pan before you start messing with this machine. So when we say that this Dutch Oven is made in America, we mean it. In fact, the first oven was manufactured in America. It was invented in 1877 and became an instant hit, especially among children. The traditional Dutch oven is steel with an unglazed cast iron coating. It is a great all-purpose pot for boiling, steaming, baking, and the like. It can also be used on a campfire. When cooking with the Dutch oven, you don't have to preheat and it will keep cooking after you cover the lid. To open the pot, simply lift the lid and your meal will come out beautifully, piping hot. Why You Need a Dutch Oven There are many good reasons to own a Dutch oven. Make great grilled steaks on a campfire and bake your favorite casseroles and cookies and your family will all be well fed. Bake Boiled Keep warm and flavorful, without losing moisture Make soft, fluffy potatoes Create soups and stews and make sauces Cook potatoes for sandwiches, stews, salads, and more Make side dishes and hors d'oeuvres Cook poultry Roast Steak grilled and broiled Grill tomatoes, vegetables, or meats for a quick dinner Grill fresh steaks, chops, and hamburgers Make BBQ

I have this basic problem regarding state and function. here is my code: function addNumbers() { alert("first function called") let a = 20 this.state.a = a // what this.state.a means? console.log(this.state.a) } I know that when I write this.state.a = 20, it is updating the value to state, because inside React state, its called by: componentWillReceiveProps() { console.log(this.state) } what I want to ask is, when I am assigning a new value to the state, how is the this.state is being updated? A: The this.state is updated through setState, which is called whenever there is change in state. this.state.a means let a = 20; this.state.a = a; // this is the assignment this.state.a is a property that refers to that assignment, and it is a mutable reference to let a = 20. When you are calling your function addNumbers, you are passing the value of a from the setState to your function which is why it is updated. function addNumbers() { alert("first function called") let a = 20 this.state.a = a // this is the assignment console.log(this.state.a) } if you want to understand the concept of state in react better, you can check this tutorial Left ventricular function and inflammatory cytokines in critically ill patients with a first episode of acute pulmonary edema.
