The actress' nomination comes alongside fellow Canadian star Jeff Bridges who has been named Best Actor for his lead role in the film which took to the screen at the festival earlier this week. Blanchett's character in the Allen film is a writer and Gertrude Stein (played by Marion Cotillard) is her agent. Her nomination is for the part she plays on screen, and not for her performance in the 2011 version of The Aviator. Also among the nominees are Helen Mirren who will be competing for Best Actress for her role in the drama of this year's big winner, Silver Linings Playbook, alongside Robert DeNiro and Jennifer Lawrence. As well as Blanchett and Bridges, the nominees are also Marion Cotillard, Frances McDormand (who has been nominated three times before) and Melissa McCarthy. Blanchett is the 11th Canadian to be nominated for the festival's top prize, Best Actor or Best Actress. Shanghaiist The Shanghaiist (; formerly known as the Shanghai Daily) is a news website founded by journalist Jimmy Lai in 2003 as a short-lived offshoot of the Shanghai newspaper and has since become an independent, though still closely connected to the paper. In 2010, the newspaper was bought by the Chinese government-owned Shanghai Media Group.

What's New in the Cigati CSV To VCard Converter?

Cigati CSV to vCard Converter is a vCard (VCF) file converter that helps you convert CSV files to vCards. It allows you to select the CSV file, set the output path and folder, select fields, and map table data to the corresponding fields in the vCard. You can also select the target format: vCard version 2.1, 3.0, or 4.0. You can also select the log path, and the folder where you want the output to be saved. Once you've selected the CSV file and the target file, you can start the conversion. We may use cookies to ensure that we give you the best experience on our website. Development and characterization of a Chlamydomonas reinhardtii cell-free system for the expression of recombinant human 5-lipoxygenase. 5-lipoxygenase (5-LOX) catalyzes the first and rate-limiting step in the synthesis of leukotrienes and prostaglandins, and is a key enzyme in the biosynthesis of potent chemotactic factors. However, few studies have been conducted to identify substrates for human 5-LOX and there is very little information on the catalytic parameters of the enzyme. In order to develop a cell-free expression system for recombinant human 5-LOX, the codon usage of the chloroplast gene encoding human 5-LOX was optimized for expression in the heterologous host, Chlamydomonas reinhardtii. Recombinant human 5-LOX was expressed and the enzyme was purified to homogeneity using a novel cholate solubilization/gel filtration procedure. The recombinant human 5-LOX exhibited both the characteristic catalytic activities of 5-LOX, and a product spectrum similar to the one reported for the native enzyme. At a protein concentration of 100 microg/ml, the cholate solubilized protein extracts produced approximately 45 nmol leukotriene C4 (LTC4) per h, a value which is comparable to a previously reported value of approximately 150 nmol/h produced by intact C. reinhardtii cells. The identity of the major product was confirmed by co-elution with authentic LTC4 and by HPLC/MS analysis
